

Professor Tommaso Maria Manzia, PhD, FEBS

Associate Professor of Surgery, Department of Surgery Science, Tor Vergata University, HPB and Transplant Unit, Rome, Italy

Prof. Tommaso Maria Manzia is appointed as Associate Professor and Consultant in HPB and Transplantation at University of Tor Vergata, Fondazione PTV, Rome, Italy.

From 2012, he is a PhD in Transplantation at Tor Vergata University in Rome. After completing a Fellowship in HPB and Liver Transplantation at Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Birmingham UK (2005-2008), he appointed as Lecturer in Department of Experimental Medicine and Surgery at Tor Vergata University

Prof. Manzia is certified with the Scientific National Qualification as Full Professor in Surgery and is a Fellow of European Board of Surgery from 2009. He has special interests in Liver Transplantation and Hepatobiliary Pancreatic Surgery. He authored and co-authored about 110 articles and chapters in HPB and Transplantation field, and has given presentations at numerous national and international conferences. As Consultant Liver and Pancreatic Surgeon he led more than 200 Liver Transplantation and Liver Resections